STAGE SET FOR TAX FIGHT IN MARION COUNTY

Officials Discuss Plans To Combat Utilities Suit for Reduction

STATE MAN HERE
87 Counties in Contest To Prevent Loss of $10,000,000 in Tax Revenue

The fight of the state of Ohio against three public utilities to prevent them from obtaining a reduction of 25 percent on the assessed values of their properties entered Marion county today when S. E. Forney, special representative of Attorney General Edward C. Turner, conferred with County Auditor Earl E. Thomas and Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedemann.

The companies involved in the fight are the American Telegraph & Telephone Co., the Western Union Co. and the Buckeye Pipe Line Co. Interest in the case, according to Forney, is statewide, as 87 counties are involved. The case, which is now before a master in federal court, will likely go to the supreme court of the United States.

Attorney General Turner is appearing personally before the court in the fight against the utilities and it is planned to take the case into each of the counties involved. Evidence for the state, consisting chiefly of affidavits, is now being assembled in all the counties. Co-operating in the assembling of evidence are various county officials and farm organizations such as the Farm Bureau.

Temporary Injunction
The utilities involved have obtained a temporary injunction restraining county auditors from placing their property on the tax duplicate at more than 75 percent of the assessed value.

In obtaining this order the companies held that they were being discriminated against and that other property within the various counties was on the tax duplicate at much less than its actual value in money. They seek to have the order made permanent.

It is the fight of the state, Forney said today, to show the court that the utilities are not being discriminated against and that other property is on the tax duplicate at its true value.

Evidence now being assembled by the state is to show that the allegations of the utilities are not true, Forney said.

While the amount of money involved in the battle against the three companies is only $225,000 annually, it is a big battle.

She Wants "To Be Happy"

Bravely Louise Grody, star of "No, No, Nanette," is going to further "complicating" the life of young Ogden Colet, heir to the $75,000,000 estate of his banker-father, according to the story which Park Ave. is telling and re-telling. The little star is reported to have had an interesting tale to tell with Colet, the banker, who told her that he would cut off his son without a penny in event of his marriage to her. But Miss Grody denies it all and now is on the high seas for a vacation in France.

American Public Turns to Snooping as Leading Form of Diversion, Officials Say

Thousands of Messages Received Annually by Prohibition Department Telling of Liquor Law Violations by "Friends" and Neighbors

Washington, July 18.—Snooping is getting to be one of the leading diversions of the American public.

And snoopers are most active in telling the prohibition office about "friends" and neighbors who are keeping something on tap for a party or to ward off a cold.

Prohibition Commissioner James M. Dorn disclosed today that thousands of anonymous messages and telephone calls are received by the federal dry bureau throughout the country, containing tips on violations of the Volstead act.

When these tips apply to serious violations, such as operation of stills, or wholesale bootlegging, they are investigated, but reports of hip-pocketing or that somebody has a half a pint in his ice box, usually go unnoticed except in the offices of the exceptionally conscientious administrator.

A large percentage of the dry raids made in the country both by federal and local agents are the result of anonymous messages of the snooping element. Officials admitted that in some cases the informers probably are conscientious citizens striving to assist in breaking up the liquor traffic, but in a majority of instances they undoubtedly are mere busybodies.

Federal dry officials do not encourage snooping, but it was pointed out that it is frequently necessary to run down tips on violations. These tips have resulted in some important convictions. Many of them result in nothing.

INSURANCE IS PROVIDED FOR SCHOOL PUPILS

All Drivers of Marion County Buses To Carry Liability Policies

COMPLETE PROTECTION
Coverage of All Children Assured Under IPant of Superintendent Rayburn

For the first time in the history of the Marion county schools, children who are required to use the school buses as a means of travel between their homes and their schools each day, will this year, be protected by liability insurance against injury or death.

Marion county, it is believed, is the first county in the state to unanimously adopt the rule requiring drivers of school buses to carry liability insurance for the protection of their passengers.

The rapid increase of traffic on the county roads has become an ever growing menace to the children, the county school superintendent says, and in view of the opinion recently given by Attorney General Edward C. Turner, fixing the responsibility in case of a serious accident directly upon the driver of the machine, it was thought advisable that the driver of the machine be required to carry liability insurance.

All Schools Included
As the result of a vigorous campaign carried on by Superintendent Rayburn among the boards of education of the various county school districts, each school in the county has adopted the liability rule.

The boards of Pleasant and Grand Prairie schools, require that the drivers of all buses, transporting children to and from their buildings, carry liability insurance from $5,000 to $50,000 while prospect is required from $5,000 to $30,000 and the remainder of the schools of the county, from $5,000 to $25,000.

The insurance is similar to that carried by the inter-city bus lines, $5,000 for the injury or death of any one child or from $25,000 to $50,000 depending upon the maximum required of any school for a group.

The liability insurance will add little or nothing to the cost of transporting the children, the county superintendent states. In fact, many of the transportation contracts made already.

Hoover Abandons Welcome Plans as Death of Wife's Father Occurs Early Today

Nominee Will Go Direct to Palo Alto by Way of San Francisco; Mrs. Hoover's Parent Unconscious for 72 Hours

Enroute on Hoover Train, near Omaha, Neb., July 18.—Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, abandoned his reception and welcome to California scheduled for San Francisco, shortly after he learned today of the death of his father-in-law, Charles D. Henry at Placerville, Calif.

Hoover, it was announced, plans to go direct to Palo Alto, Calif., his home, by way of Sacramento, and will make no stop at San Francisco.

For the past 72 hours, Mr. Henry had been unconscious and his physicians moved at the way he hung on to the thread of life. He died at 5:30 o'clock this morning. No one was at his bedside when he expired.

Worried after their constant vigil, Mrs. A. V. Louis, Mrs. Hoover's sister, and Allan Hoover, his grandson, left the Placerville sanitarium late last night.

Funeral plans are held in abeyance pending word from Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, who are now enroute here from the middle west.

Mr. Henry was stricken on July 4. He never rallied from the attack. He gradually became worse and three days ago he lost consciousness.

Mrs. Hoover went into retirement in her private compartment upon being informed of the death of her father.

NEW PRESIDENT ASSASSINATED AT LUNCHEON

Youth, Held in Jail After Capture, Refuses To Reveal Motive

POSES AT CARICATURIST
Fires Five Bullets into General Body; Slayer Is Beaten

BULLETIN—Mexico City, July 18.—A special meeting of the Mexican congress was summoned today to elect a president pro-tempore to fill the vacancy caused by the assassination of President-elect Alvaro Obregon.

Belief was held in many quarters that Aaron Serna, governor of the state of Nuevo Leon, former minister, would be selected. Serna was director of General Obregon's presidential campaign.

Under an amendment to the constitution of 1917 President Calles is barred from succeeding himself. Mexico City, July 18.—With troops held in readiness to prevent disorder if necessary, business at a standstill, saloons, theaters, motion picture houses and other public places closed, an atmosphere of tension mingled with grief pervaded here today following the assassination of Gen. Alvaro Obregon, president-elect of Mexico.

Strict censorship was enforced while the government sought the plotters who planned the assassination. Juan Escudilla, the assassin, undermanned looking youth who gained access to the presidential palace, was today being held in a luncheon in his honor at a luncheon, surrounded by police as a newspaper caricaturist and then

CALVARY STEP NEARER LOOP TITLE

WESELEY WINS FAST CONTEST FROM IRISH IN NINE ROUNDS, 8-7

League Leaders Must Take Three Games To Clinch
Pennant

FIVE FRAYS LEFT

Christians Defeat Presbyterians
as Epworth Trims
Trinity Nine

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
Calvary	5	1	.833
Epworth	4	2	.667
St. Mary's	4	2	.667
Christians	4	2	.667
Trinity	3	3	.500
Epworth	3	3	.500
Presbyterians	2	4	.333

Calvary took another step last night towards clinching the pennant in Sunday School League No. 1 when they defeated the second place Epworth Seniors, 10 to 4.

The league leaders can still be eliminated from the flag race in case they drop at least three of the remaining four games while Epworth Seniors win all of their contests.

Calvary can still lose one contest without losing the pennant but must win the other three frays to escape a possible tie with the Epworth nine. By winning two games while Epworth Seniors win all the remaining contests, the league leadership will be tied. Last year's city champions will have no easy row to hoe for the balance of the season.

Calvary took a complete reversal of form, it is not likely that the flag this year will rest in any hands other than those of that team. However, stranger things than that have occurred and Calvary will be compelled to go at tip top speed for at least three games without letting down. Last year at this time the leaders had the flag all sewed up. They are getting quite a bit more opposition this season.

Wesley is making a great fight to finish the season well up in the first division. Last night the Olney av. team stopped all over the Irish from St. Mary's winning, 8 to 7.

Wesley scored seven runs in the fifth inning while the Saints tied the count in the next frame with four counters. The seventh inning found each team going scoreless and two overtime sessions were required before Wesley obtained the score necessary to break the tie.

Wesley and Christians are now jointly holding down fourth place. Calvary's victory over Epworth Seniors.

K. M. BOWER ENTERS LAST ROUND OF GOLF HANDICAP TOURNAMENT

Owens and Keller To Complete Semi-Final Matches

K. M. Bower entered the final round in the semi-final round of the tournament of the President's Cup handicap tournament at the Marion Country Club yesterday afternoon by defeating J. J. Hane, five up and three to go. Hane gave Bower a one stroke handicap.

One more match remains to be played in the semi-final round of the tournament before the 10 starting contestants will have been eliminated to the two finalists. Owens and Keller will fight it out over 18 holes to decide who will meet Bower for the cup. Owens, by reason of his win in the first handicap tournament held earlier this year, is being favored to come out ahead.

James C. Woods entered the final round of the second flight of the tournament by defeating Carl W. Leffler one up in 21 holes. Woods gave Leffler a handicap of four strokes. Allen defeated Simmons one up in 20 holes.

This afternoon Bowers will participate in a match with the local team. Seniors came after a seven run rally in the last inning. Epworth's four runs in the third frame seemed to be good for a win but the slugging league leaders got a start in the seventh which couldn't be stopped.

Christians beat the Presbyterians, 15 to 8, and Epworth won over Trinity, 10 to 1, in other contests played last night.

The scores:
Epworth..... 102 202 3-10

CONCEDE HEENEY GOING CHANCE

Tunney Not Challenger Is Big Question of Heavyweight Fight
July 26; Sentiment Rushing to Side of New Zealander

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
Fairhaven, N. J., July 18—If you want a tip they say is hotter than the other end of your cigarette, you will take the odds one week from tomorrow night at the Yankee stadium and send the slaves along on old Tomatoes. Heeneey to win the heavyweight championship of the world.

This, anyhow, was the consensus of expert opinion today in the camp of the challenger. Almost unanimously, the lads who stand back on the fringe of the throng the better to see all, hear all and know nothing concede that Heeneey has a good chance of "taking" Tunney for his pompadour on the night of the twenty-sixth.

Heeneey, as a matter of fact, has a real chance, more so than the opportunity the odds must grant a man who goes in there with the orthodox number of hands, eyes, feet and arch supporters. But this overnight rush of sentiment to the side of the New Zealander, I think, may be traced to some extent to a natural desire to cope with what happened in Philadelphia two years ago.

At that time, the lads climbed aboard the bandwagon and took over the corner obligato. Almost in a twinkling, they solemnly overruled Dempsey couldn't lose. About six or eight inspired souls, all told, closed their eyes and took a hazardous plunge off the other side. They picked Tunney and slept fitfully.

Tunney Far from Night
At that, the boy could be in a tougher spot than the present one. Tunney is far from right, according to the last look I gave him some few days ago, looking one to suspect that he might be ready for the handclasp if tossed in with a real good fighter.

They say Tunney won't knock Heeneey out with a paving block. The big question about the fight, it is not Heeneey but Tunney. If the observers here really have reason to believe that he will go in there ill prepared next week, then they are justified in their attitude toward the affair. If not, it is a case of paraphrasing the old chestnut and saying that guessers shouldn't be choosers.

SECOND PLACE GOES TO CUBS WHEN REDS WIN OVER NEW YORK

St. Louis Holds Four-Game
Lead in National League

New York, July 18—The Cubs eased back into second place yesterday, four games behind St. Louis by losing to the Phillies, 4 to 3, as Cincinnati finally stopped the Giants. Clyde Beck, at the tail-end of the Chicago batting order, walloped a homer with the bases jammed that gave Charlie Root the edge over Jimmy King.

Luque outpitched three New York batters and a fancy catch by Clegg in the ninth insured a 5 to 4 victory for Cincinnati. The Reds played Stripp, former Columbus third baseman, in the outfield and Stripp proved he was not a come by getting a hit.

Fussell, a rookie, pitched the ninth inning for Pittsburgh and got rid of Slider and Hornsby with two runners on the sacks, the Blues winning 7 to 6. The Braves, like the Phillies, have lost 10 straight.

The Cardinals slugged Dazzy Vance all over the lot and swamped Brooklyn, 7 to 1, evening the series.

George Uhle holds no terrors for the Yankees this season. Al Shealy, New York rookie, won a 4 to 2 decision over Cleveland. The champions swept the five game series.

The sprightly St. Louis Browns also made a clean sweep of their series with Washington, taking the final game 5 to 0.

After four straight defeats, the Red Sox scored six runs in the first inning and outslugged the White Sox 9 to 6. The Bostonians climbed out of the cellar, as Detroit took a 6 to 2 beating from the Athletics. Lefty Grove turned in his eleventh victory.

PADDOCK SCRAP MAY BLOCK U. S. PLANS

Los Angeles Trip Not Causing Much Enthusiasm Among Nations

New York, July 18—While reverberations and repercussions set off by the decision of the American Olympic committee to include Charles Paddock on the United States Olympic team are still shaking the amateur athletic world here there is a growing feeling among those intimate with the affairs of track and field and other sports that the real explosion will come when Paddock and the American contingent reach Amsterdam and that one of the most probable results will be the cancellation of plans to hold the Olympic competitions of 1932 in Los Angeles.

There has been a growing feeling that the European nations will look forward to 1932 and the long trip to Los Angeles with comparatively little enthusiasm and that it would take not very much in the way of an excuse to make them change their minds and vote to retain the games on the other side of the Atlantic. That the Paddock incident is likely to offer the excuse for which the foreign countries have been waiting is the general belief of those closely in touch with the affairs of the international Olympic body.

BAKER WINS

Akron Negro Starts Too Late To Gain Decision

Cleveland, July 18—Sergei Samoylov, New York welterweight today had another victory to his credit by defeating Gorilla Jones, (negro), of Akron, in the 10-round main bout of a boxing carnival here last night before 6,000 fight fans. Jones finished strong but started too late to get the decision. It was not until the ninth stanza that the Akronite "got busy."

Both fighters were cautious throughout the 10 rounds but Baker managed to shoot over enough hard rights to the body to gain the decision.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

The black raspberry season having reached its peak, dealers here today were advertising berries for canning at $5.50 a crate, which would be equal to 23 cents a quart. While the supply appears to be large throughout the entire season, the price has not fallen below this point.

Red raspberries continue scarce. A few were on the market today selling at 35 cents. Blackberries were also scarce. Dealers were carrying a few selling slowly at 25 cents a quart or two for 45. Gooseberries and currants continue to come on the market in quantities just about sufficient to meet the demand and the price is holding at 22 cents for the former and 25 cents for the latter.

Vegetable prices were steady, with large supplies of nearly all kinds and with the demand about normal. New potatoes were being offered today at no change in price. Grade A stock could be bought from 20 to 30 cents a peck. A few old potatoes continue to come on the market and although they are being offered as low as 50 cents a bushel, the demand is practically nil, dealers say. Peas were not so plentiful today. Those coming on the market were of good quality, however, and the price was holding at three pounds for 25 cents. Yellow beans were being offered today at 15 cents, and green beans at three pounds for 25 cents. Cabbage is plentiful and was selling today at five cents a pound. Cucumbers were holding at five, 10 and 15 cents. The supply appears to be fairly large and dealers report a ready demand.

Hoover Assured Midwest Farm States Will Go For Him

NOMINEE IS PLEASED AT VOTE PROSPECTS

Secretary Also Gratified with Results of His Visit with Coolidge

MEETS FARM LEADERS

Attitude of Iowa Governor Cheers Candidate; Given Endorsement

Enroute with Hoover Through Nebraska, July 10—With his special train rolling through the heart of the grain belt, Herbert Hoover today received assurances that the midwestern agricultural states will be safely in the Republican column next November. The Republican presidential nominee heard cheering news from Gov. John H. Hamill of Iowa at a breakfast table conference in his private car. Hamill, a farm leader not only endorsed Hoover's agricultural views but declared the corn and wheat belts would yield him the usual Republican predential majorities at the fall election. Hoover gave serious consideration to the farm problem as his train roared past fields of wheat and corn. He was met by Hamill at Missouri Valley Iowa, at 7:22 a. m. and the governor spoke with him to Omaha. The Iowa's attitude greatly cheered Hoover as Hamill headed the committee of 22 from the corn belt states, which called on congress last spring for agricultural relief.

To Meet Others The nominee planned to meet other farm leaders at Omaha during an hour's stop this morning in the Nebraska city. Gov. Adam McMullen of Nebraska, who led the farm assault upon the Republican convention at Kansas City, will board the train at Omaha, Neb., during the forenoon. It was rumored aboard Hoover, following this conference.

Another report that cheered Hoover came from Arthur Nelson, the regular Republican candidate for senator in Minnesota, who seeks Senator Henrik Shipstead's former laborite seat in the senate. Nelson, who joined Hoover at Duluth and rode to St. Paul, declared Minnesota would go Republican in usual in November and that Minnesota's farm leaders were friendly to the Republican nominee.

These reports gave Hoover a 1000 battling average for the trip. Since leaving Washington, he has been told he would carry Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa. He received no reports about the situation in Maryland, the only other state traversed.

Planned With Visit The Hoover leaders on the train looked upon the reports from Iowa and Minnesota as indicative of the attitude of the whole grain belt. They were hopeful of getting as good reports from Nebraska. With these three states, safely Republican, it was said, Hoover's greatest worries over the agricultural situation would be ended.

Hoover came into the agricultural belt after a 1,000-mile detour to visit President Coolidge at the Summer White House in Wisconsin. The nominee obviously was pleased with his visit to the president and left Wisconsin with a personal assurance that the chief executive would help him in the coming campaign. It was reported that Mr. Coolidge would make two or more speeches in behalf of Hoover as his principal contribution to the campaign.

The nominee likewise was said to be pleased with the president's approval of his contemplated campaign policies. After talking to the president, it was said, Hoover definitely decided to have his campaign on the issues of Republican property and Republican efficiency in governmental affairs. To these as national issues, there will be added other issues of interest to particular localities, including the Republican tariff in the east and the tariff and proposals for co-operative farm relief in the west.

WORTHLESS CHECKS PASSED BY WOMAN

Merchants in Marion, Lima and Bucyrus Victimized, Is Report

A woman check worker, believed to be the one who operated in this city in 1924 and who passed the checks on merchants in Lima and Bucyrus early this month, gave out a number of worthless checks among local merchants on July 6, it was learned this morning.

The checks were for $20 each and were on the First National Bank of Kenton. The woman, according to the description given B. E. Bindley, representative of the National Detective Agency, who is conducting an investigation of the case, was well-dressed and apparently well-educated and appeared to be acquainted with the clerks in the various stores in which she worked.

In order to lessen the danger of detection and to quiet suspicion of any who might question the worth of the checks and call the bank, the woman had opened an account at the Kenton bank and deposited $42.

Entering a store, the woman, in a quiet dignified manner would make a small purchase and in payment would write out a check for $20 payable to the merchant. A check-up today showed that between 20 and 25 checks all for $20 each had been given out by the stranger in Bucyrus, Lima and this city.

Her manner of working, together with the description given by the victims, leads the police to believe she is the same woman who passed a number of worthless checks in this city in 1924. So far, no clue has been unearthed which might lead to capture of the woman, Bindley said this morning.

A girl can safely marry a young man whose love survives the test of viewing her picture taken in the family group.

Murder Of Obregon Attributed To Political Plot In Mexico

DEATH PLANNED TO END CALLES REGIME

Army Is Most Threatening Element of Present Situation

OPPOSED FIRING SQUAD

Head of Labor Federation Controls Is Many Votes of Country

Washington, July 18.—Sensational reports touching the background of the assassination of President Obregon reached the capital today in private circles to persons closely identified with Mexican affairs.

Reports from three sources attributed the ruthless murder to a political plot calculated to end the Obregon-Calles regime, which has ruled the country with an iron hand for almost a decade.

The most threatening element of the situation, today, it is thought, lies in the fact that Obregon was the absolute dictator of the Mexican army, and it was his power over the military leaders which kept the ambitious army over the country lined solidly behind the Calles administration.

Army Prize of War

With this firm hand of control, he moved, the army became virtually a prize of war for the competition of rival political groups opposed to the Calles rule.

Advices to the Mexican embassy and to the state department reported popular feeling running high throughout the country against the assassin, but gave no hint of the grave political possibilities of Obregon's death. The tone of the private advices reaching here today, however, is confirmed by the clamping down of a vicious censorship in Mexico City last night.

Ambassador Morrow is understood to have given Secretary of State Kellogg a true picture of the situation over long distance telephone, but Kellogg is bound by diplomatic usage to make public no details of a aftermath not released by the Mexican censorship.

Revolutionary Group

Obregon's assassin is reported in one private telegram to have been a revolutionary group still faithful of the firing squad methods adopted by Obregon personally last October to put down the menacing mutiny of a strong military cabal which openly attempted to seize the government by winning the army from the Obregon domination.

When this abortive uprising had been crushed, Obregon carefully scrutinized the personnel in his higher commands, and several important shifts of assignment were believed to have destroyed the last remnants of the revolutionary group. Today's advices, however, established that the ugly head of discontent within the army is again visible in the intense future at Mexico City.

A provisional president must be elected by congress, and here will be found representatives of all the elements of the Mexican government.

Resemblance to Three Different Leaders in Public Life Puts Marion Man in Limelight

CHARLES H. ALLEN, of Marion, who is now assisting in the organization of the Citizens Finance Co., at Canton, is having difficulty in convincing residents of the Stark county city that he is not Thomas A. Edison, the electrical wizard or D. R. Crisler, former governor of the Federal Reserve board.

Mr. Allen, who is said to resemble both of these men, almost daily has to reveal his real identity to persons of that city who mistake him for the noted inventor or the former reserve board governor, according to reports of a Canton newspaper.

On several occasions during his visit to Marion, Mr. Allen has been mistaken for the late President Harding, the newspaper report says. In an interview with a writer of the Canton paper, Mr. Allen cited one instance, when he was enroute to Cincinnati from Marion on a train, that he was mistaken for Harding, who was then a senator. The fact that he boarded the train in Marion and had a resemblance to Harding convinced the passengers in the smoking compartment that they were fellow passengers with the man who was later to become president.

One afternoon Mr. Allen was seated in the lobby of the Willard hotel at Washington when a woman walked over to him and asked if he were not Mr. Crisler. The woman later turned out to be an old schoolmate of Mr. Allen's.

Mr. Allen was mistaken for Edison at Marion City, Ind., where he had gone several years ago to address a meeting of sugar beet growers. As he walked to his hotel from the train he became aware that he was being followed and soon learned that the crowd at his heels believed him to be the electrical wizard.

Point of an epigram sparkles no brighter for being set in larger type.

Daily Proverb—"Hearts alone have no eyes."

The wealth of the United States is estimated to have increased 4,100 per cent since 1850. Now if you can recall what you had seventy-eight years ago, it won't be much of a job to discover whether or not you got your share.

At Santarem, over in Portugal, a bull attacked a moving train and derailed it, but this should not kindle false hopes in the hearts of our motorists. The cars over there are fearfully small and light, offering nothing like the resistance of which ours over here are capable.

A tapestry executed during the reign of Louis XV, of France, brought $75,000 recently at an auction in Paris. It all appreciation of old tapestries was indifferent as ours, a carload of them would not bring anything like so much money as that.

His Death a Telling Blow.

Captain Emilio Carranza was to the Republic of Mexico what Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh is to the United States—beloved of his countrymen, an aviator of exceptional skill, and above all else, an unassuming young man. That Captain Carranza went to his death because he was too proud to admit defeat by the elements appears to be the reason why he crashed a short time after he had started on what was to have been a nonstop flight from Roosevelt field to Mexico City.

It seems that Captain Carranza ran afoul of a severe thunder storm a scant two or three hours out, and his ship crashed in a berry patch on a Jersey farm. It has not been determined whether lightning struck the airplane, but this seems not to have been the case. At any rate it is evident that the flier sought to ride out the storm, and instead rode to his death.

It is only fitting that the United States should officially recognize Captain Carranza's death, and that the Stars and Stripes should drape his casket.

Death of any aviator is to be regretted, but it is to be doubly regretted that a man of the caliber of Captain Carranza should be killed in the prime of his life.

If the Nationalists had dropped out the "e" in changing Peking to Pei Ping, we would have taken it that they were seeking to commemorate the "piping times of peace" which haven't existed in China so long as to have become obtrusive.

A few days ago a Washington youth jumped overboard from an ocean liner off the Grand Banks to prove his contention that a liner would stop and effect a work of rescue in such a case, and now Richard Hillebrand, the author, is reported to have leaped into the sacrificial well at the Children's Hospital which was used by the Mayas to sacrifice maidens and prisoners of war, to prove that there was nothing in the 1,000-year-old tradition that one who took the leap ever lived to tell the tale. Aren't we getting a bit too realistic in our demonstrations of the accuracy of our views.

The Trend of Population.

That vast stretch of seven northwestern states, from Lake Superior to the Pacific, which was first traversed by a railroad only forty-five years ago, will be an empire of more than 16,000,000 people—more than double its present population—with the next quarter of a century.

Such was the prospect presented by the late Howard Elliott, chairman of the Northern Pacific Railway company, whose lines first linked the great lakes with the Pacific.

The seven states—Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon—have increased their population twelve-fold since 1870, while the population of the country as a whole was only trebled during the same period. In 1870 the combined population of these seven states was only 604,359, while today it is 7,723,000, while the railroad mileage of 1870 was only 1,316 as compared with 35,260 today.

The development of this northwestern area of the United States has only begun. Minnesota, the most populous of these states, has but 39.3 people to the square mile, as compared with 122 in Illinois, ninety-nine in Delaware, and fifty-one in Georgia. Oregon has but 3.8 people to the square mile, and Montana but 4.4.

Natural resources now lying dormant in the seven states are capable of supporting several times the present population in comfort. More than half of the timber supply of the nation is in the northwest. Approximately fifty per cent of the water supply resources also are there. There is iron, lead, zinc, gold and building stones, and an unexcelled means of transportation, not only by railroad, but by very good highway.

It was in 1863 that the Great Northern line was completed after a series of financial and physical hardships, not the least of which were frequent fights with the Indians.

It's Summer in Washington.

President Coolidge is feeling in the Wisconsin wilds—Dr. Hubert Work, who was secretary of the interior, has resigned to manage Herbert Hoover's campaign. Mr. Hoover's resignation is in the hands of Mr. Coolidge. Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury, is on his way to Europe on a vacation. The governor of the Federal Reserve board is in the pine woods.

Joe Smith is a usual being carried on in Washington, but it's summer there, and Congress is adjourned and there is a general let-down all along the line. Politics at the moment is the principal topic of conversation. Ben and Lin, who put out a weekly bulletin from their Washington office, say a fair cross-section of Washington political opinion at the current writing is as follows:

Smith will be either overwhelmingly elected or overwhelmingly defeated. The landslide for Hoover will be greater than the landslide for Lincoln four years ago. The Republicans face their most difficult contest in a generation. The Democrats this year do not have a ghost of a show. Smith will be elected by a combination of wet, church and German-American votes. Smith can not possibly be elected. The former opposition to Hoover makes it absolutely certain he will lose.

From this array of opinion one is privileged to manufacture one's own private opinion.

The quarterly meeting of distinguished government scientists was held the other day at the Cosmos club. A score of men whose names rank high in the world of science were there. The principal subject of discussion was the effect of government classifications on their salaries and the respective days of "leave" remaining to each.

The chiefs of bureaus are out of Washington at this time. The economic specialists have gone to Europe, not to vacation, as one might surmise, but to make surveys of this and that, mainly to be prepared to advise the government properly, but mainly to use up small remaining portions of appropriations which would have reverted to the general fund on June 30, if they had not gone overseas.

And so it goes. It's a typical Washington in summer.

It may be just as well that Mary Pickford has cut off her curls and decided to eschew the girl roles. For some time, it has been a bit difficult not to realize the gap between knowledge of her age and some of the parts she has portrayed.

The Mania for Snooping.

The executive council of the Boy Scouts organization in Cleveland has instructed the boys—they all are under seventeen years of age—to make it their business to seek to persuade women to give up the cigar.

It is proposed that the boys shall approach the women whom they see smoking in public and lecture them on the habit, telling them that smoking cigars causes women and detaches from the ideal of the motherhood.

Maybe the executive council is right. Maybe smoking does just what is said of it. Perhaps there are many fine people who dislike to see women and girls smoke. And there are many fine women and girls who both smoke and eschew the cigar.

But somehow one can not help feeling that the result of this effort to turn the Boy Scouts, an entirely inoffensive and in many ways admirable organization, into snooping busybodies is entirely foreign to the tenets of Boy Scouts, and distasteful to the parents of many of the boys in scouting.

One of the first things such a plan will do is to corrupt the morals of the boys. More than that, it likely will incense the women approached, and the parents of the boys themselves, to such an extent that the Scouts will emerge from the process depleted in numbers and considerably lower in prestige.

If these people must find something upon which to work in an effort to save somebody's morals, they might better stick to politicians and bootleggers and such, and let the Boy Scouts alone.

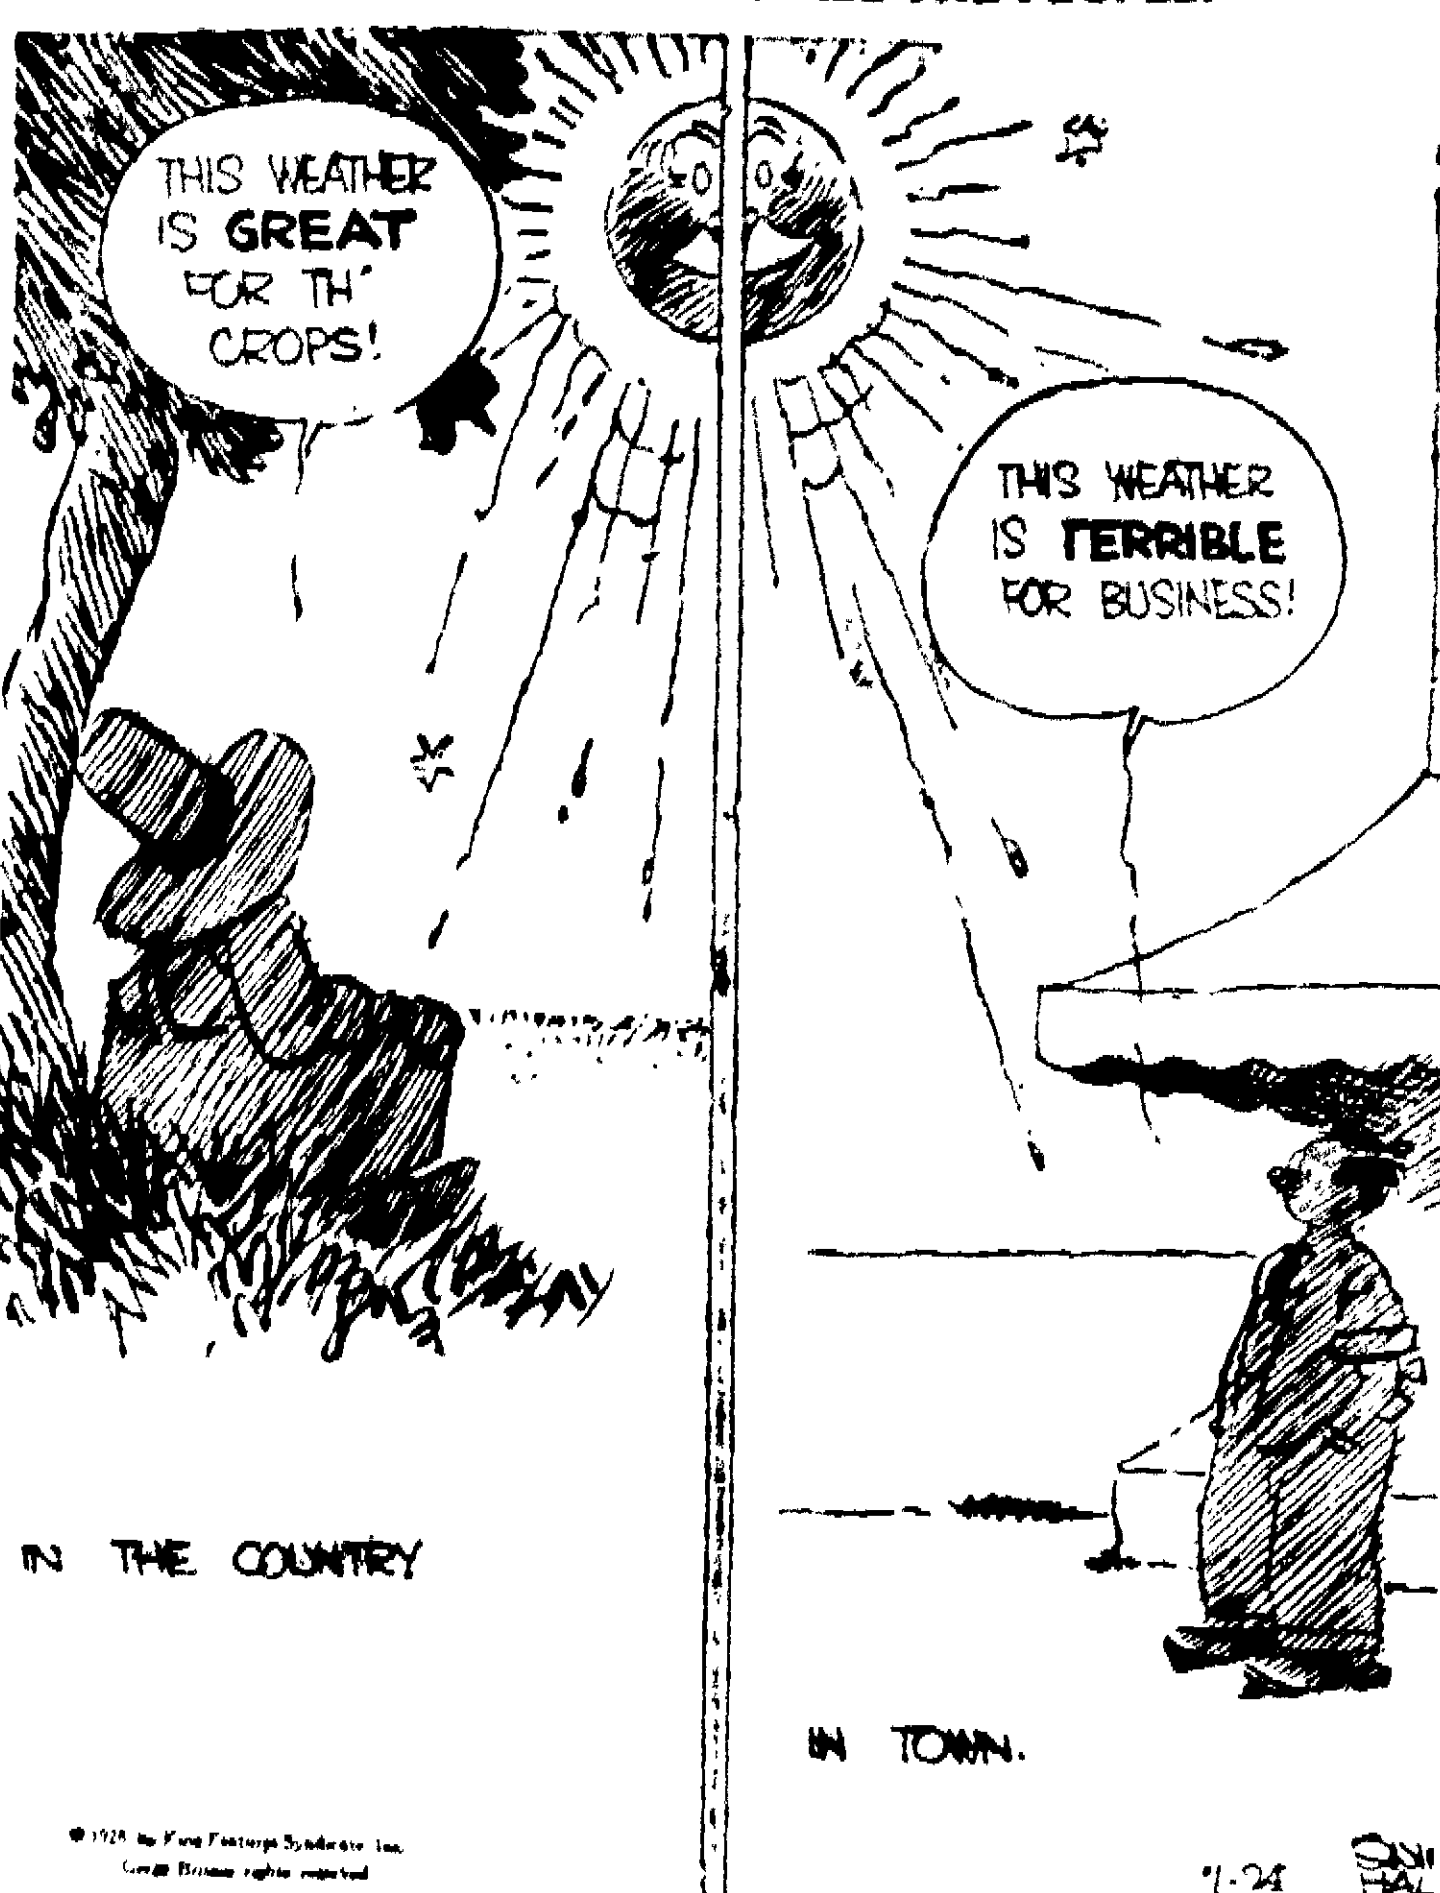

For years it has been the practice of moonshiners along the line between North and South Ireland to evade the authorities, moving across the line when approached by the officers of either, implicitly relying on the feeling between the two divisions to prevent their authorities from acting in concert. But the unexpected happened, and a general clean-up resulted. And, from all accounts, it's a toss-up to decide who were the more greatly surprised, the moonshiners or the citizens of the Irish Free State and Ulster living in the vicinity of the line.

Vagrant Verse.

TO A LITTLE BOY.

These are some woods that grow where old woods burned.
These are young trees that stand where old trees fell.
These are the slow fulfillment of a dream.
Of having life and living it full.
Child, looking at these slim, sun-dappled trees,
The thoughts that fill your mind are such as these:
Strong good and philosophic elm are here,
Prestid to great age the birch, whose brief
And lyre life is careless of the wind,
The maple, practical from root to leaf,
Child, so it is with you. Thoughts true yet kind,
Thoughts, frail and fleet, are growing in your mind.
O loneliness of shadows on new leaves,
And sun upon a woodland miniature
Where strong and weak stand equally in youth,
As it just having life made life seem!
Child, when doubt's storms break hark like thoughts, then know
The elm-like thoughts will still be there to grow!
Around frail trunks, the promise of great strength;
Beyond thin shadows, continents of shade;
How can one look upon these glad, young woods,
And for himself or other be afraid?
—Violet Allen Story.

YOU CAN'T PLEASE ALL THE PEOPLE.

Teeth Often Source of Trouble.

BY ROYAL A. COPELAND, M. D.

One of the most disagreeable of the common diseases of adult life is known as "Riga's disease" or "pyorrhea." This is a pus infection of the gums in which the tissues become soggy and inflamed. The gums draw away from the teeth and, without their support, the teeth get loose.

You can see that the pus poured out from the diseased tissues in this region must be swallowed. Taken into the stomach, the infection is carried to other parts of the body.

No matter what may be the location of the tissues where pus is produced, every part of the body is in danger when there is pus anywhere. Every person who has pyorrhea is in danger of other ailments, each of which may be worse than the first trouble.

I doubt if the gums would be attacked by this disease if there were not a lowering of resistance from some cause. Nature is very generous to those who obey her rules. On the other hand, she is very resentful of disobedience.

Before considering what may be done in the treatment of pyorrhea, you should make a survey to find out what is wrong with your habits. Find out what disturbances are involving your body and lowering your resistance to disease.

If I were to outline the rules of procedure in the conduct and control of Riga's disease, I think I should establish this order:

1. Make a thorough examination of the victim, to determine if the ears are free from discharge, if the nose and nasal sinuses are without serious catarrhal condition, if the stomach, gall bladder, liver, kidneys, generative organs and intestines are performing as they should. Find out if these organs are free from disease.
2. Careful inquiry to determine if exercise, fresh air, sunlight, good water and proper food are the habitual possessions of the victim.
3. An examination to make sure that the teeth are clean, free from tartar and other deposits, and without excess of cavity.
4. Lastly, to select some method of cleaning and stimulating the diseased gums.

These four steps are essential to the removal of pyorrhea. Among the agents which may be employed to supply local stimulation, I include the ultra-violet rays.

Of course this is the merest outline of what should be done in a case of the sort. But it is one thing to get at the bottom of the trouble and another thing to have it cured.

From time to time I advise you to consult your friend the doctor. Your friend the dentist is another person of almost equal importance to your well-being. He should be asked to look over your teeth at regular intervals.

Pyorrhea is a disease of a million times more important than to attempt its cure. (An ounce of prevention)—you know the rest. Certainly this advice applies to pyorrhea.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

A. R. Q.—What causes itching of the head and scalp on the scalp?
A.—Probably seborrheic capitis. Have the scalp examined and be sure to keep both hair and scalp clean with frequent shampooing and careful rinsing.

J. C. Q.—What do you advise for cataract?
A.—While a cataract can often be removed by operation, the condition must be "ripe" before it can be operated upon. The eye specialist should be the one to determine when this procedure is advisable. —Copyright, 1923, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

This day was Saturday.

News was received here of the death of Granville Rider, from Marion jeweler, which occurred in Delaware.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON

Those who read these lines today may get it down as a fact that by this time next year more than 10,000 persons will have died from murder in the United States. In one year in one large American city there have been more than in all England. There is more than one reason. Perhaps American court practice, which provides many and convenient delays all along the road from arrest to conviction—when there is conviction—is the principal cause. Some say publicity is the cause of crime. The facts are all against that. There is just as much publicly given crime in Europe as in America. And yet, European countries, compared with our own, are law abiding.

Speaking of crime the record of Denmark is remarkable. Denmark, that peaceful little land that lies toward the north of Europe, believes in capital punishment. It has a law that persons shall be executed for murder. And yet Denmark's latest execution was in 1886.

Cracker barrel wags think they know more about science and invention than all the inventors. What's the use? queried the scuffer back in 1871 when the first typewriter was put on the market. "This machine is only a toy. It is more interesting than jack-straws, but far too expensive to be popular."

"What's the use of this?" asked the first young doctor who accidentally discovered the effect of ether. "Yours later wiser men brought other to the attention of the medical world. Great results often lie along the way of attention to what are apparently little things."

Columbus fought a hard fight in his struggle to reach America. He and his men faced the mysteries and the terrors of the unknown seas. His sailors believed the ocean to be inhabited by unspeakable dragons. In subject fear they refused to go on. In stubborn and murderous resistance they mutinied. After the worst encounter that Columbus had with his rebellious crew, after the seemingly hopeless struggle of the day, we find him writing, at night, in his diary. And here is what he wrote:

"This day we sailed west."

LIFE FOR A CARD.

The old story about the man who held thirteen trumps in a bridge game and took only one trick because his partner shot him for trumping his ace has just and its counterpart in Detroit where a woman, becoming mad at her partner's dumb playing, pulled out a pistol and killed her. The woman who did the shooting has just been sentenced to life imprisonment.

Persons of excitable temperament should steer clear of sports and games, or at least they should leave their guns at home when indulging in a little friendly competition. No greater pest exists than the person in a bridge game who proceeds after each hand to explain to or lecture his partner on what he should or should not have done and in a good many cases it is not the lecturer who has cause to shoot, but the lecturer.

To be a non-complaining loser is just as important as to be a non-glouting winner. Equality of temperament, at least in outer manifestations, is the most desirable attribute of the player of games. Profanity, card throwing or shooting certainly has no place in a supposedly friendly gathering.

Bridge is credited with precipitating many a friendly quarrel and many a club controversy. Inasmuch as it is purely a doubles affair—that is, two people are dependent each upon the other's skill—its very structure is calculated to arouse discussion. It is a fascinating pastime, however, and a game of concentration for both sexes. But the next time your partner fails to return your lead be a good sport about it and remember the woman in Detroit who will spend the rest of her life in a penitentiary because she resented a mislay in a moment of unjustifiable hysteria.—Washington Star.

Dinner Stories.

Tommy, hearing purring cat—"Just listen—he has fallen asleep and off his engine running."

A young woman traveling from Ireland, and nervous of the crossing, asked the stewardess which was the best berth to take.

"Well," said the stewardess, "if you're alone you'd better take the under berth, but if there's any one above you it had better be yourself."

Modern Daughter—"But smoking doesn't do any harm, mother?"
Mother—"Then, for goodness sake, how did you ever come to take it up?"

First Explorer, indicating gesticulating native—"Can you understand what he's saying?"
Second Ditto—"Not a word."
First—"Darned lot of good you are with your university education."

Jupiter and Mars.

BY GARRETT P. SILVERMAN

From conjunction on the morning of July 10, the planets, Jupiter and Mars, will start during July. Both are moving in the same direction that the sun is traveling faster than they are. They are left behind and are gradually falling backward into the sun's path. When a planet rises before midnight, it is an "evening star." Both Mars and Jupiter will be evening stars, comparatively during the remainder of the month. Jupiter's pace is slower than Mars, the sun will come round him again to Jupiter sooner than it will to Mars.

Both planets, both Jupiter and Mars, are in the constellation of Aries, rising near midnight, but a month from now, while Jupiter will still be in Aries, Mars will have advanced eastward into Taurus, between the Pleiades and the Hyades, and will be considerably later than Jupiter.

Both, however, will be all the time brightening, owing to increased nearness to the earth. Jupiter will be in opposition to the sun, and will cross the meridian at midnight on the 20th of October while it is still in Aries; but Mars will not be in opposition until the 21st of December. At that time Mars will be in Gemini, shining in the middle of the winter midnight like a burning ruby amidst the star-strewn region of Orion.

Observations on Mars, occurring in the winter are much less favorable for observations on the physical condition of that planet than those that occur in the summer. On this occasion it will be the North pole of Mars that is inclined toward the earth, and the northern hemisphere of that planet presents less striking details for telescopic observation than the southern. Besides, the distance between Mars and the earth is much greater than at the time of a favorable opposition. It will be on December 21 about 56,700,000 miles away, whereas in very favorable oppositions it is within 36,000,000 miles. Still, Mars, will be a very interesting object, even for naked-eye observation, on account of its color, which will be in contrast with that of the first-magnitude stars which specially adorn that quarter of the sky where the opposition occurs.

Jupiter in opposition will be telescopically a much more interesting object. Its light will be interior only to that of Venus, and its wonderful surface markings will be plainly visible with small telescopes. This refers not only to the time of opposition in October, but generally to the whole period of Jupiter's presence in the middle of the evening sky.

Mars is a little world compared with the earth, its diameter being only about 2,100 miles, against the earth's 8,000, but Jupiter has the enormous diameter of 86,600 miles, making its volume equal to that of 1,300 earths.

Jupiter is larger than all the other planets put together. But, while Mars and the earth are solid planets, Jupiter is evidently in a very different physical state, its density being only one-third greater than that of water. All of the visible part of the planet appears to be composed of heavy clouds in which astonishing motions and disturbances occur. Some of them, strongly colored, are drawn out into vast, irregular belts, one on each side of the equator, and the appearance and changes of these belts are fascinating subjects of observation for all possessors of either large or small telescopes. Then, Jupiter's four principal moons, with their transits, and eclipses, and rapid motions, are sources of unending interest for observers.

When Jupiter is well placed in the evening sky, it will be this summer and autumn, amateur and professional astronomers alike rejoice. One of the greatest of celestial wonders is then nightly before their eyes.—Copyright, 1923, International Feature Service, Inc.

Eye to Eye.

BY TEMPLE MANNING

"Sun at Carol I staid wid a stree I say mouth.
An they talk me, nae doubt, for a promish' you."

This is a couplet sung by the youths of Cumkirk on the annual "Hilling" day, a festival held in that part of England, in Wales, Yorkshire, Derbyshire and Lincolnshire, some time during the months of October or November. Each town may choose its own day, and Martinmas day, known as the servant's saint's day, is the one usually selected.

The purpose of the holiday is to bring servants and their masters together, and it is the survival of an old custom. The men and the women stand in rows, one row for the former, one for the latter. The prospective masters and mistresses walk down the lines and choose the ones they think will make the best servants.

In Cumberland, the men who wish to be hired stand with staves in their mouths reciting the couplet I have already quoted. In Lincolnshire, the servant and prospective employer exchange the "fessen"—or fassen—"penny." It signifies that for one year the servant must work for this, and no other master, and is as good as any written and witnessed contract.—Copyright, 1923, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY G. O. MINTYRE

New York, July 10.—The charm of a city which is pronounced on a sunny day, it is a part of town that completely the splendor of a dying day and making it to create a mood, detached, some little glow.

There is a verdant freshness to the triangular squares which does not occur in other open places in the city. A quiet sublimity about the Queensboro bridge with its ivy-clad towers and the red bricked mansions impresses the eye.

The village has an Old World manner, brick pavements fill with leisurely people you see young folks drifting across the street with arms thrown over each other's shoulders. Women in dresses occur camp chairs in doorway, roams at random.

The doors of the coffee shops and parlors are wide open and the proprietors sit out front in shirt-sleeved ease. Children, too, occupy the high front. Children roll hoops, play hide and other games in the dwindling open spaces. Very few village stores open until they are open all evening at which time they do their biggest business. They dress in bath gowns, hand-woven dresses, art metal work, lamp shades, suitcases, truck umbrellas and naughty pictures.

On a summer evening windows of the celled studios are usually open, and the colorful comfort of the open air, the high mantels and expansive manner of other generation. Biobs of light flicker, flickering and dancing in attics and on touch.

The village has many back yards, but been a good deal of the time, they have with cool gravel paths and flowers. And usually a bench, a striped umbrella. Along some of the streets there still remain trees with leaves, a sort of idyllic mockery to neglect its trees.

The produce distributor sprawling in a southern section of West street is a contrast from the usual in New York buildings are of old red brick with a wings spreading out over the street. Across the street are the alleys of the piers. Out front is a panorama of stationary piles of crates produce. All these are groups of boys driving dead motor trucks and horse drawn wagons to ball.

At night the sacks and boxes are with seamen, longshoremen and other port characters who prefer their comfortable couches to bug-ridden lodging.

Around the gloomy dock market at night are wretched women who carry and forage for kumling, rotting fruit and articles that drop from wagons. In the light they are reminded of bazaar stalls at cartoon.

An auto dealer tells me New York is usually of professional "samplers." These men and women of good address are able to supply themselves with cars continuously by offering, through a respective party, a various auto agency. As they secure trial cars to drive, theater, shop and even go about to tips.

And large jewelry houses are frequent victims of these estimable who come over night on approval, waiting their play or opera, and returning them in morning.

The only way I was ever able to get thing free outside of the customary machine editors—has been on Fifth Avenue, but that is ended. They have stolen a little black comb in the washrooms.

And add similes: As useless as the green hammocks they hang between the berth windows.—Copyright, 1923, by the Naught Syndicate, Inc.

Giovanni Viotti—Composer.

BY COLETTE DRUGLASS

Giovanni Battista Viotti was the son of blacksmith. He was born in Fontanafredda, Italy, on May 23, 1755. He was who played the horn, taught the boy the means of violin playing and so apt was that he attracted the attention of the king of the Prince della Cisterna, and the prince placed him under the tuition of violinist Pugnani at Turin, where Viotti came violinist in the court chapel.

In 1780 Pugnani made a tour of Russia and Poland, taking Viotti with him. Viotti had already made quite a name for himself as a violinist, and in Russia attracted the attention of the Empress Catherine II, honored him with extraordinary favors.

In 1782 he went with Pugnani to Paris where he at once established himself in favor of the public. In Paris his success was greater than it had been in London and he was universally acknowledged as an artist.

A concert which he gave in Paris in 1782 being poorly attended, and a rival violinist winning the plaudits of the public, Viotti abruptly closed his personal affairs and devoted himself to teaching and composing. The Prince de Soubise, archbishop Viotti leader of his private orchestra, and in 1788 Viotti joined Leonard, Queen of Sardinia's, household, in Turin. The prince later transferred to the Theater of St. Germain in 1790 and was finally with with the Theater Feytaud in 1791.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDY MORTIMER LEWIS

Maggie and Jubilee laid and thought a long time about Maggie and her having to learn to smoke cigarettes because she was going into society. I told Jubilee he would be in a mess if he had to go into society, because his mouth isn't made to hold cigarettes. Anyone has to have a mouth shaped like a sucker's to be a good cigarette smoker.

When I had let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth and had put on my short breeches to milk the cows in we were in the barn all of us talking about the cigarettes, and all at once someone hollered "Yoo-hoo!" and there came Feeble and Yonnie and Maggie. So we didn't say any more, and when I had went in and fed my face and gotten over to the barn I let out the way the pasture was noticed that the girls had faded, so me and Gump told the rest to play ball and we would go and see what we could find out, so we went over to Yonnie's and when we went in the yard we went close to the house and ducked under the window sills and into the shed, and we heard them talking back of the shed.

Feeble was saying: "Aren't you afraid, Maggie?" and Yonnie was saying: "I don't think you ought to do it without your mother knowing it." And Maggie said: "Are you going to tell my mother?" "Certainly not," said Yonnie. "Are you going to tell your own mother?" asked Maggie. "Of course I am," said Yonnie. "I tell my mother everything I do." "Well, if you tell your mother and your mother tells my mother," said Maggie. "I think it will be the meanest thing anyone ever done."

All the while Maggie was getting the box of cigarettes out, and they had cork tips on and Maggie took the first one and tapped it on her thumb nail and stuck it in her face and lit it and took a long puff and the firecracker didn't hesitate at all but blew the cigarette into pieces and burnt the end of Maggie's nose and singed her eyebrows and Yonnie screamed and Feeble went over the fence into the alley like a cat and so did Maggie.

The next we knew there was Yonnie setting with cigarettes all around her and her mother looking down at her, and her mother grabbed her by the arm and drug her into the house, and I was so sure what she was going to get that I grabbed Gump and we both ran and busted into the house, and Yonnie was lying face down across her mother's lap, and it made me ashamed, but I phoo! Yonnie was looking at me and I told all about it, firecracker and everything, and what Yonnie's mother turned her right side up and wiped her tears and kissed her, and said to never tell Maggie about the firecracker and maybe she would be afraid of cigarettes.

Me and Gump went and gathered up the cigarettes. Maybe we'll do something with them.

Painful Memories Confront Lillian

RESTITUTION From Samuel Brixton

The words, almost whispered by Lillian, seemed to ring through the room, so charged were they with amazement and a touch of the superstitious terror which the first sight of the letter she just had received had given her.

I never had heard the name, but before opening the letter Lillian had recognized the handwriting as that of an old associate of her first husband, Michael's father. I could hear just the way she had said "Tom!" as if even after all the years she could not bear to speak the name of the husband who had made her marriage a mockery and had kept her baby daughter from her during the beautiful years of the child's little girlhood. I know that everything and everybody connected with that tragic marital experience was anathema to Lillian, and waited tensely for the explanation which I was sure she meant to give me. If she had intended to keep her own counsel she would not have opened the letter before me.

"Samuel Brixton!" Again the name echoed through the room, and then Lillian lifted her head and looked at me.

"You're warranted in thinking I'm just waking up from the gas," she said with the trace of a smile quivering her lips. "And it really seems like a fantastic old vision—this letter. Sam Brixton is the last man on earth I ever expected to hear from. The last time I saw him was in the first years of my marriage to Tom—again, that curious hesitating aversion to speaking the name of the man now dead who once had been her husband. And he just had written me—out of a sum of money which at that time meant the difference between poverty and poverty. He and Tom quarreled bitterly, and I never have seen him or his wife since. Poor Helen! she was set to blame. I know she suffered terribly because of it, but she could do nothing. And now after all these years of silence comes this letter! Read it, please—about—like that stand on it, and tell me what you think of it."

Obediently I picked up the letter, written in bold, slashing characters—patently the work of a man who did not wish to dictate the letter and was not familiar with or did not wish to use a typewriter.

"Dear Lillian," it began, "I hope you'll let me address you that way, even though I know you must be still mighty sore at me—and my wonder. But please when I tell you my news, you can try to forget and forgive."

"I've made my pile at last, and the first thing I've planned to do is to give ten to you or Tom's daughter. The money he and I quarreled about, so many years ago. It's hard to admit it, but I was wrong in that old deal, and I can't rest easy until I've made good every penny of it with interest. Please write and tell me the earliest opportunity."
